

HOUR OF CODE

One hour. One world. One activity to unite us through computer science – the Hour of Code. Every December during Computer Science Week, people from around the globe come together to practice their coding skills.

Choose a day between December 3-9, 2018, sit down at your computer and visit code.org/learn to join students in 180 countries for one hour of code.

When you participate, you can work toward your Brownie and Junior Programming Robots badges as well as earn a new patch!

Whether you're a beginner or have been coding for years, you can take part in the Hour of Code.

HOW TO JOIN IN THE HOUR OF CODE

You'll need...

- Access to a computer or tablet
- Internet connection
- Headphones are recommended

When you're ready...

1. Visit code.org/learn.
2. Explore the website! Above the activities, you'll find suggestions based on age and coding experience to do.
3. Get the patch! When you have completed your hour of coding, you can purchase the Hour of Code patch at any GSOH Shop location or via our online store